ANONYMOUS - staff officer with Fremont - M3818,E

September 27th. to November 3rd. 1861

Diary of the march from St. Louis to Springfield; a discursive account with notes on camps and local populations; admiration for the General; detached for duties with General Asboth; details of a rebel atrocity; lost on the prairie; a second hand account of the expulsion of the rebels from Springfield; entry into Springfield; notes on slavery and abolition; Delaware Indians; preparations for defence of Springfield; Fremont is relieved of his command and the discipline of the army is threatened as a result; the relieving general arrives, the proposed advance is halted and the army returns to St Louis. The diary ends with a passionate defence of General Fremont. The diary forms the whole central portion of an article which may well have been written by the diarist himself.

DANIELS, Nathan W. - E

From 1861?

Military diary of the commanding officer of the 2nd. Louisiana Native Guard Volunteers. "A candid account of military prejudice in the Civil War - Union Colonel Daniels, white commanding officer of the 2nd. Louisiana Native Guards, a black regiment, was confined with his unit to obscure duty on Ship Island, off the coast of Biloxi, Mississippi. Ordered by General Butler, the promotion of 76 educated, free blacks was an experiment during the early days of enlistment. Within a year nearly all the officers, including their white colonels, were forced out or had resigned in frustration. - Daily entries of routine life on the military post and comments about frustrations of being caught between the black and white military worlds of the day. Recalls a fierce skirmish on the mainland at East Pascagoula, Mississippi, in which his black troops suffered most of their casualties from apparently intentional 'friendly' fire from the Union gunboat Jackson".

2. - Arksey refers to an extract for 1862 The California Column Occupies Tucson in Journal of Arizona History Spring, 1985.
b) - 1875 to 1878
"Born in Oneida County, New York in 1830, George O. Hand caught gold fever and sailed for California in 1849. For the next 10 years, he found adventure but little gold. During the Civil War, he served with the California column for the union cause. After the war, he settled in Tucson, Arizona, where he worked as a butcher, saloon-keeper, and night watchman and custodian at the Pima County courthouse. This is Hand's unexpurgated, personal diary of the 4 years he spent as an old west salon keeper. It records frontier life in Tucson - "the fiestas, cockfights and bullfights; bar-room brawls, outlaw depredations and Indian raids; smallpox epidemics, rabies, and personal battles with pleurisy, 'piles' and 'jim-jams;' the loneliness, tedium and harshness of frontier living, and the raucous political battles of the times."

BAILEY, Mary Ellen Jackson - E

After 1862?

“Mary Ellen Bailey, the young wife of the manager of the Latham Stage Station, usually served daily meals to at least twelve employees of the stage line, as well as taking care of the daily chores of her husband, who appears to have been absent quite a bit... In one diary entry Mary Ellen wrote that she ‘milked the cows, got breakfast, dressed 44 pounds of butter, and then did the chores.’ Later in the day she took time out to take on her lastest job, that of teaching the local children. On another occasion she attended a dance at Godfrey's Ranche, getting home at 5:30 in the morning, just in time to prepare breakfast for the passengers of the stage. On some days she baked as many as 51 pies, on other days she writes that she made 3000 cookies!”
Latham was the last station on the South Platte.

KING, John M. - E

From 1862 to 1865

"In 1862 John M.King joined the 92nd, Illinois Mounted Infantry. During his service for the Union he travelled 15,000 miles and participated in 33 engagements. A newspaper owner and editor, he naturally recorded his experiences using an inquisitive, often wry style. Throughout he registered the comic along with the tragic: his drunken commanders, the infighting among his comrades, and the often unjust disparities between officers and soldiers."

LOUGHBOROUGH, Mary Ann Webster (1836-1887) - E

1863

“At the age of twenty-seven, along with her two-year old daughter and her husband, Confederate Major James M. Loughborough, Mary Ann Webster Loughbrough, arrived in Vicksburg. Shortly thereafter, the Union armies began a month and a half seige against the fortification in order to gain control of the Mississippi River. As she and her daughter took refuge in dugout caves in the hills above Vicksburg, Mary Loughborough recorded her daily life. Her personal account of the events of 1863 vividly documents some of the many extraordinary experiences of ordinary people on American soil during the Civil War.”

BARRINGTON, Alphonse (Alpheus) (Albert) (George) John (1831-1893) gold prospector in New Zealand

1863 to 1864

“... The most adventurous part of the journey, made with Edward Dunmore and Antoine Simonin, took him from Lake Alabaster in the Hollyford valley up the Pyke River (where they competed with wild dogs for game) to the Cascade River, then through the rugged Red Hills area and onto the treacherous Olivine Ice Plateau. Along the way Barrington became separated from his companions, and endured 10 days of rain, snow, cold and hunger. He threw away most of his possessions and chewed on raw speargrass roots. Once he had found his mates, they travelled down the Barrier River to Lake Alabaster again. They roasted a rat that Barrington declared ‘the sweetest meat’ he had ever eaten. After another week of rain and snow, they arrived back at Wakatipu, undernourished and exhausted...”

MANIGAULT, Edward [Major] - E

“Major Edward Manigault, one of the commanding officers ordered by General P. G. T. Beauregard to document his unit's daily operations, began a diary in July 1863 that would become one of the most informative records to survive the Civil War. Covering thirteen months of combat in one of the Confederacy's rare siege artillery units, Manigault's journal offers a day-by-day, at times hour-by-hour, account of life on the front lines. Especially notable for its description of artillery training, Manigault's diary vividly depicts his unit's participation in such well-known engagements as the battle for Battery Wagner and the attempt to sieze the U.S. gunboat Marblehead.”

03

SALM-SALM, Felix, Prince (1828-1870) Prussian prince and aide-de-camp to Emperor Maximilian of Mexico
1864? to 1867?

"The diaries tell the story of Emperor Maximilian's three year struggle in Mexico which led to his imprisonment, trial, and execution; and of the efforts of Prince Felix to fulfil the wishes of the Emperor's Last Will, and his inability to obtain sight of the documents. In the event Prince Felix used his diaries to prepare a narrative of those three eventful years, and included parts of the diary of his wife Princess Agnes Salm-Salm. The narrative includes the Prince's own time in prison, the attempts at escape, and his release and departure for Europe."

My Diary in Mexico, with Leaves from the Diary of Princess Salm-Salm London: Richard Bentley, two volumes, 1868.

Note: It is probable that only the record of 1867 contains contemporaneous material.

CHAMBLISS, William H. (b.1865) - E

Dates Unknown

William H. Chambliss (b. 1865), a Mississippian, came to California as a member of the crew of the U.S. Essex in 1886 and made San Francisco his home base for the next five years as he shipped out on a succession of merchant vessels. He then tried to make his way in the city in advertising. Chambliss' diary (1895) describes his years at sea and voyages to Japan, China, Australia, Hawaii, and other Pacific ports of call as well as his life as a San Francisco man-about-town. The book consists largely of gossip and scurrilous rumors about leaders of San Francisco's "parvenuocracy" of the late 1880s and 1890s: the Crockers and De Youngs and less-well-known pretentious upstarts, cardsharps and gambling hustlers, and society publicists like E.M. Greenway. (This description is taken from the openlibrary website).

Together with Observations on the Burning of the Vessel at Sea and the Subsequent Miraculous Preservation of Fifteen Persons during a 43-day, 4, 000-mile Voyage to Hawaii in the Ship's Longboat, as Prepared by a Newspaper Reporter Writing under the Pen Name of Mark Twain."

Longboat to Hawaii: An Account of the Voyage of the Clipper Ship Hornet of New York Bound for San Francisco in 1866 edited by Alexander Crosby Brown, Cambridge, Maryland, Cornell Maritime press, 1974.

Note: From Honolulu Magazine July 26th. 2016: "A newspaper journalist, covering Hawai'i for The Sacramento Union, Twain smelled a good story. He copied passages of the sailors' journals into his own, selling the story to Harper's Monthly. But when the story published that December, it was credited to Mark Swain. For a young scribe aching to make a name in the East Coast literary world, that must have hurt. Still, many years later, long after Twain shook up that same world with his bold story of a young boy harboring a slave on the Mississippi River, Twain called his story of the Hornet's survivors, 'My debut as a literary person.'"

BOND, Marshall (1867-1944) - E

Dates unknown

“As a boy he rode the open range driving cattle north from Texas. As a young man he went to Alaska in the Klondike gold rush, becoming a firm friend of Jack London, who based Buck in The Call of the Wild on Bond's dog. He roamed the deserts of Arizona and Sonora and boated down the wild Colorado River, camping and prospecting. In 1902 he traveled to Mexico City with a relative of Theodore Roosevelt who was involved in a bizarre attempt to colonize Mexico with Boers from the Transvaal. For a year he lived in a shack in Goldfield, Nevada, reporting for several newspapers on the amazing discoveries of gold there. In 1911 he went big-game hunting up the Stikine River in British Columbia with Lord Osborne Beauclerk and the explorer Warburton Pike. Investigating Mexican silver mines in 1918, Bond found himself in the midst of bloody fighting with Pancho Villa. On his return to the United States he visited New Mexico, interviewing and photographing the survivors of Billy the Kid's gang and the Lincoln County War. These adventures and more are related here by his son.”

MILNER, John [Rev.] (1822-1897) naval chaplain - e

“In 1867, Prince Alfred, Queen Victoria's second son [Alfred Ernest Albert, Duke of Edinburgh, later Duke of Saxe Coburg and Gotha], commissioned the Galatea for a voyage around the world which would include the first royal visit to Australia. Stopping along the way in Rio de Janeiro and Cape Town, Alfred was received with great ceremony at each port of call. These visits provided the ship's chaplain John Milner (1822–97) and the artist Oswald Brierly (1817–94) with ample material for this chronicle, published in 1869, which gives background details of each region alongside scenes from the tour, enhanced by illustrations based on Brierly's sketches. The authors drew on various recollections and writings, including a letter from Alfred to his brother describing an elephant hunt in South Africa. The tour was abruptly curtailed in Sydney when a Fenian sympathiser attempted to assassinate the prince, an act which boosted support for the British royal family.”

a) - (Annotation originally based on extracts) (December to August 186-) January to April 1868 (December to August 186-)
Schoolboy's diary; fighting and punishment; his unjustified hopes of a spelling prize and his disappointment; a cure for warts.

2. - Extracts: Berger (2), pp 260-265.

b) - September 1868 to September 1869

More schoolboy adventures in diary form; the years are given only as "186-".

c) - June to November 186-

More of the same.

Brite and Fair New York, Cosmopolitan Book Corp., 1920.

Note: The entries in this series of diaries are implausibly regular and lengthy, and the dating of the third diary seems incompatible with that of the other two if the starting year is really 1868. The source of this date appears to be Berger, who gives no supporting evidence, and it appears to have been accepted by Arksey without consulting the full version of the diary. Given the number of books by the author which expand upon the characters in the diaries and are clearly fiction it is improbable that there is any contemporaneous foundation for the series and the diaries are best regarded as entirely fictional.

d) - March to November 191-

Purported diary of a hobby farmer. Given the nature of the preceding diaries there must be some doubt about the provenance of this one, but, despite its often flippant tone, is well observed and may in fact be, at least in part, authentic.

LEHR, Harry Symes (b.1869) - E

Dates unknown

“Harry Symes Lehr was born in 1869 into a family that was neither wealthy nor socially prominent. His natural gift for entertaining and his penchant for hobnobbing with the very rich earned him entry to the powerful circle of the New York and Newport social elite, where Harry clowned his way to a position of prominence. One of his admirers and patrons, Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, introduced him to a young widow, Elizabeth Wharton Drexel. Elizabeth was smitten with young Harry, his elegant dress, and outrageous behavior. They were soon married. But King Lehr had a secret he was not what he seemed. On their wedding night he cruelly dictated to his new bride the rules of their strange bedfellowship. For twenty-three years, Mrs. Lehr protected his secret and remained in a loveless and abusive marriage. After Harry’s death, Elizabeth remarried, to the Baron Decies. Lady Decies wrote down her secret story in 1938, incorporating Harry’s most intimate diaries, and told all in this scandalous tale of power, desire, and deception.”

KILVERT, Francis [The Rev.] (1840-1879) - H1682,B279

a) - January 1st. 1870 to March 13th. 1879

Diary of a romantic. Parish life in Wiltshire and mid Wales. Observant, lively and sensitive; his work; his parishioners, high and low, and social life; very good descriptions of way of life and living conditions; susceptibility to female charms but with much emphasis on physical characteristics of girl children; descriptions of scenery and weather sometimes overwritten. One of the best diaries but either the diarist or his editor has omitted much practical detail and private thought of finances and career which would have completed the picture.

1. - Kilvert's Diary; Selections from the Diary of the Rev. Francis Kilvert edited by William Plomer. London, Jonathan Cape, three volumes, 1938, 1939 & 1940. The first edition was published without an index, a deficiency later supplied by a separate publication (undated).

2. - Kilvert's Diary 1870 - 1879 edited by William Plomer. London, Jonathan Cape, 1944. A selection from the three volume edition which went through four impressions and was reissued in 1960 and later.

3. - Kilvert's Diary; Selections from the Diary of the Rev. Francis Kilvert edited by William Plomer. London, Jonathan Cape, New and Corrected edition reprinted with index, 1961. This edition was reissued with illustrations in 1977, reprinted 1980.

4. - Extracts: Blythe, pp 94-102; Brander (1), pp 187-210; Dunaway, pp 308-315; Fothergill; Waite, pp 239-255; and Willard, pp 109-116. See also After Kilvert by A.L. Le Quesne (qv). London, Oxford University Press, 1978; Readers Union, 1979.

b) - Of the twenty two manuscript notebooks from which the three volume selection was taken only three now survive, and these have been published in full, as follows:

1. - April 27th. to June 10th. 1870

The Diary of Francis Kilvert April-June 1870 Aberystwyth, National Library of Wales 1982.

2. - June 11th. to July 18th. 1870

3. - July 19th. to August 6th. 1870

Kilvert's Cornish Diary edited by Richard Maber and Angela Tregoning. Penzance, Alison Hodge, 1989.

4. - Extracts from these are contained in Kilvert the Victorian; A New Selection from Kilvert's Diaries by David Lockwood. Bridgend, Poetry of Wales Press, 1992. Francis Kilvert and his World by Frederick Grice; Horsham, Caliban Books, undated; is a useful miscellany of biographical, bibliographical and background information, with quotations from the diary.

MUNCASTER, Josslyn Pennington, 5th. Baron (1834-1917) - E

“In 1870 a major diplomatic incident was sparked off by the kidnapping and eventual murder of a party of English tourists in Greece. In April 1870, while sightseeing, Lord Muncaster and a group of friends were ambushed by brigands. Four of the party were abducted, but Lord Muncaster was released to raise the ransom for all of them. The negotiations became complex, and the Greek government, fearing that the brigands would take their captives over the border into Turkey, took matters into its own hands. Troops surrounded the brigands' camp and provoked a clash which resulted in the murder of the hostages.”

KING, John Lyle - lawyer - E

1875 and 1877

"Trouting on the Brule River is a literary account of genteel sportsmen's fishing expeditions during the summers of 1875 and 1877. Originally published in the Chicago Sunday Times and the Chicago Sunday Tribune, the book's chapters tell how a group of Chicago lawyers traveled by rail, foot and canoe to destinations along the Menominee, Michigami, and Brule Rivers in Michigan's Upper Peninsula. The author describes the delights of fly-fishing in lyrical detail, along with bobbing for pike, shooting rapids, deer and duck hunting, and encounters with birds and animals. He romanticizes the expedition's Indian guides, believing that they lived in a state of nature." A very detailed, if loosely dated account.

HAWLEY, Victor - dental assistant in the Oneida Community - E

1876 to 1877

“... love, aggression, jealousy, and the conflict between private desire and public good. Victor Hawley was a thirty-year-old dental assistant with a passion for collecting butterflies, who fell in love with Mary Jones, another colony member. Because of the community’s unique social and sexual practices, however, the two were kept apart and denied their request to have a child. In the eyes of the community, their love was unsanctified. Instead, on the order of colony founder John Humphrey Noyes, Jones was subsequently impregnated by Noyes’s son. ... In 1877, after twenty-three years at Oneida, Victor Hawley left the community with Mary Jones after he nursed her through an agonizing pregnancy that ended in stillbirth. They married, had five children, and lived on their own, outside the embrace of Eden.”

LAINER, Gretchen (pseud.)

July 12th. 1884? to January 24th. 1887? (For dating, see note below)

Purported private diary of Viennese girl from between the ages of eleven and fourteen; her friend Hella and elder sister Dora; school, social and family life; holidays; the illness and death of her mother; growing sexual awareness; full and regular entries.

1. - A Young Girl's Diary prefaced with a letter from Sigmund Freud, translated from the German by Eden and Cedar Paul. London, George Allen and Unwin, 1921. Second impression, 1936.

2. - A Young Girl's Diary edited by Daniel Gunn and Patrick Guyomard. London, Unwin Hyman, 1990. This is a revised edition with substantial discussion of the diary's provenance and authenticity.

3. - Extracts: Berger (2), pp 272-287. The extracts are taken from the German edition, Leipzig, 1921, and there are textual differences between them and the equivalent passages in the English edition which are not explicable simply as alternative translations.

Note: Sigmund Freud apparently regarded the diary as genuine, and seized upon it as a document of great value, both for itself, and particularly as exemplifying some of his ideas about female sexual development. If the diary is authentic in origin it probably dates from the 1880's but if this is so, in its published form many anachronisms have been introduced to support the printed dating to '19--', presumably by the original editor, Dr. Hermione von Hug-Hellmuth, who may have been the author and would have had good reason to disguise the fact.

LANGDON, John Chandler (1864?-1947) sailor, of Bristol
1884

Narrative of a trading voyage to the West African Coast; a good picture of life on the lower deck with much about the work and his fellow sailors; contempt for native Africans. Written up in 1930 and partly fictionalised but there is extant a manuscript diary of part of the voyage which informs the account.

In Three Voyages to the west Coast of Africa in 1881-1884 in Camden Miscellany XXXV Camden, Fifth Series, Volume 19. Cambridge university Press for the Royal Historical Society, 2002. the accounts of the first two voyages appear to be purely retrospective.

LUMMIS, Charles S. - E

“When young Charles Lummis heard about a job in the small town of Los Angeles more than a century ago, he walked all the way to it. across the plains, up Pike’s Peak, down Devil’s Gorge, through the Grand Canyon, over the desert. It was, by conservative estimate, one of the grandest hikes in American history. With no reason to be modest, Lummis called his unpretentious account of it the wayside notes of a happy vagabonding.

A Tramp across the Continent Scribners, 1892; University of Nebraska press, 1982.

JAMESON, James Sligo (1856-1888) naturalist and African traveller - E
1886? To 1888

“... the march soon disintegrated into chaos, with large-scale desertion and multiple trips to try to bring up stores; then on 19 July Barttelot [leader] was shot while trying to interfere with a Manyema festival. Jameson decided to go down to Bangala to bring up extra loads and left on 9 August, shortly before Stanley's arrival. Stanley was incensed at the state of the Rear Column, blaming them for lack of motion despite his previous orders that they wait for him at Yambuya. From surviving officers Stanley also heard stories of Barttelot's brutality and of another officer, Jameson, who was alleged to have purchased a young female slave and given her to cannibals so he could record her being killed and eaten.”

The Story of the Rear Column of the Emin Pasha Relief Expedition edited by Mrs J.S.Jameson, London, 1890. Jameson died in Africa and his widow published his diaries in defence of his reputation.

KERR, John Graham [Sir] (1869-1957) Scottish embryologist and member of parliament - E
1889 to 1891 and 1896 to 1897

"... narrative of two expeditions in South America, the Pilcomayo expedition (Paraguay River area) in 1889-91 and the Lepidosiren expedition in 1896-97. Deals with native peoples (Natokoi and Toba Indians) and their customs, birds, fish, insects, wildlife, conditions, etc, together with the South American lungfish, which is the link between water breathing fish and air breathing land animals. This latter part of the book is a gives insight into a particular problem in the study of evolution and is an absorbing account of field work under appallingly difficult conditions. His account of the Natokoi tribe is important today since at the time of his observations, the tribe was untouched by missionaries and had survived in a state of primitive communal organization."

ATCHISON, Charles C. - E

1890?

“Mr. Atchison was compelled by failing health to take a holiday, and spent it—exactly two months in duration, he tells us, by journeying to South America. His route was Lisbon, ' St. Vincent,' Pernambuco, 'Bahia, 'Rio de' Janeiro, Buenos Aires, and sundry other places in the Argentine and Uruguay, and so home. And this he did, it is interesting to learn, at the cost of £100... Mr. Atchison has a good deal to say about himself, his fellow.passengers, and the places he visited. If he could only have purged his humour of a certain spice of profanity with which he seeks, it would seem, to give a flavour to it, his book would have been better than it is. As it is, it becomes now and then very distinctly offensive to any one with a reverent mind.”

FRENCH, Emily Louisa (b.1843) divorcee in Colorado - E

“After bearing a number of children to the alcoholic Marsena French, a clothing store clerk turned doctor, Emily suddenly found herself divorced after thirty-one years of marriage and stranded in her adoptive state of Colorado with no alimony, no child support, and no marketable skills beyond housewifery and a little practical nursing.” “Emily moved four times in 1890, and her diary records three distinct aspects of Colorado life during that year: on the eastern prairie, in the now-gone mountain village of Dake, and in Denver. The blizzards and droughts of Elbert stand in startling contrast to the knee-deep mud and Fourth of July parade of Denver.”
